Mass reenlistment at Tripler commits 41 Soldiers to 112 more years of Army service

Surf's Up! From the third floor rooftop of Tripler Army Medical Center overlooking Oahu's south shore, 41 soldiers were reenlisted Oct. 1 by Brig. Gen. Steve Jones, commanding general of the Pacific Regional Medical Command. The soldiers were raring to go, but Army manning polices held up their reenlistments for several months. The soldiers represented various medical, dental, and veterinary commands on Oahu. In keeping with the ceremony theme, they received small koa surfboards and beach towels in appreciation for their commitment of 112 more years of Army service. U.S. Army photo by Leslie Ozawa.
